Subject: BUREAU CHIEF EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP PROGRAM—FALL 2005

We are pleased to announce that the Los Angeles County Learning Academy will be offering the Executive Leadership Program—Practical Leadership in an Era of Turbulence: A Diagnostic Approach for Decision Making. This program is tailored to the needs of incumbent bureau chiefs who have responsibility for managing multiple divisions and programs within and across County departments.

Like most executive leadership programs, the focus is on advanced concepts and applications that can assist leaders in confronting current situations and using data as a foundation for critical decision-making. Unique to our program is the requirement that participants actually apply the material to their operations and share findings, possible actions, and learning with others. For example, all participants will do an actual assessment of the "culture" of their operations and propose potential interventions to further align with the County's movement from Condition A to Condition B. Other dimensions of the program include choosing the "right" organization design, understanding the needs of the new workforce, self-assessment, and development of leadership behaviors.

The program held at the Department of Public Works, 12th floor executive conference room will begin October 26, 2005 and will conclude March 15, 2006. It will consist of ten 4-hour classroom sessions plus scheduled team and individual coaching sessions with instructors. Participants will need to complete applied projects and will receive coaching from faculty on project development, findings interpretation, and intervention strategies. California State University faculty and County subject matter experts will teach classes.

This memorandum requests your assistance in identifying the 16 participants for the fall class. You may nominate up to two of your executive staff at the level of bureau chief or higher. Please use Attachment A to nominate potential participants.
